

Company Profile

inubit – integrating your business and IT

The name “inubit” stands for “integrating your business and IT” and is vision as well: Since the foundation in 1999, the Berlin-based company stands for the idea to consolidate technological competence and business know-how. Today inubit is managed by Michael Hahn (CEO) and Erica Fölsche (CFO).

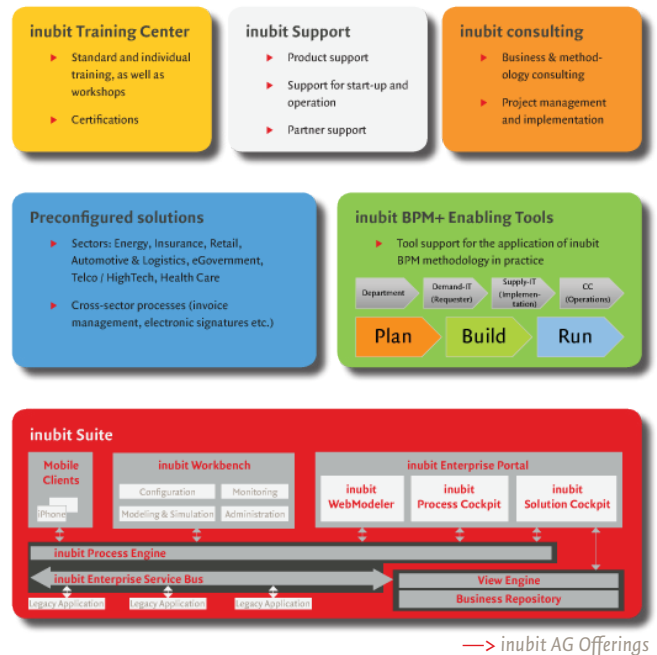

From the BPM methodology with which customers are supported in the introduction of a BPM project, to the inubit Suite as the technological backbone for the optimization and automation of processes, to a wide range of services that comprise business and technological consulting, reliable project implementation and business process outsourcing: inubit guides customers through all phases of Business Process Management.

Michael Hahn, CEO of inubit AG:

„With our purpose-developed BPM methodology and the inubit Suite we support companies in optimizing and automating their processes and in introducing Business Process Management both on a tactical and strategic level.“

In order to be able to individually respond to customer requests and market developments in a quick and flexible way, inubit cooperates with national and international partners for sales and project implementation. Among them are system houses, system integrators and IT consultancies. With this, complete solutions for customers are developed quickly and in a cost efficient way that ensure a smooth operating of business processes within a company and across company borders.
